10 O'CLOCK EDITION

THAW'S FREEDOM NEAR

CITY WILL SERVE NEW ENGLAND

Mayor Fitzgerald, leading Boston bank presidents and other financiers, representatives of trade and commercial organizations, economic experts and others representative of the solid business life of Boston and New England piled one demand on another for a Boston regional bank today at a hearing given here by Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury and Secretary of Agriculture Houston.

Mayor Fitzgerald warned the two Cabinet members that Boston has felt the financial arrogance of New York city.

"We wish to guard against this power which has built up New York at the expense of Boston and other places," urged the Mayor.

Professor O. M. W. Sprague of the Harvard College Department of Economics, one of the leading speakers, was questioned at length by both secretaries on account of his technical knowledge of currency and the financial prospects under the Glass-Owens bill.

Professor Sprague emphasized his opinion that, when the regional banks are established, Boston will "naturally serve all New England."

"STILL PART OF U. S."

President C. H. Hoyt of the New England Shoe & Leather Exchange sounded a keynote when he concluded his remarks with this snapper:

"New England is still a part of the United States and wants to be considered so."

While teh hearing was in progress word reached there that Representative Greenwood of Everett had introduced a resolve at the State House indorsing the Boston regional bank idea and commending the Chamber of Commerce's activity for it. Representative Lomasney suggested that the resolve include others who have also done much for the bank idea, and action on the resolve was put over until Monday.

The two cabinet members held a hearing in the reading room of the Chamber of Commerce. Among the Boston men who were present were President J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., of the Chamber of Commerce; Edmund Billings, William A. Gaston, General Charles H. Taylor, Congressman Michael F. Phelan, Hugh Bancroft, Joseph H. O'Neil and Clarence W. Barron.

President Coolidge in opening the hearing and in welcoming the two secretaries, said:

"I am going to take it for granted that since eight regional banks are

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald thus disposed of the "sticker campaign" in his interests:

"I know nothing about Mr. Sanborn (who printed the stickers) and do not recall ever meeting him. I cannot understand his motives, as he must certainly know my wishes in the matter.

"It is the SHEEREST NONSENSE to expect a sticker campaign using my name in the present contest, and I earnestly hope that every citizen will take this point of view.

NEW SURPRISES IN CEDARCREST LIQUOR TRIAL

Charges of police bribery in the loan of Brabtree were made on the witness stand in the Quincy Court today by Mrs. E. Grace Reynolds of the Cedarcrest Club.

Mrs. Reynolds testified that Officer Henry Dugan of Braintree had twice approached her for money, and had said the second time:

"Mrs. Reynolds, you're to come across with some change. Things will be all right for you."

Mrs. Reynolds was testifying in the trial of George E. Fogg of Braintree, accused of illegally transporting liquor. His arrest was the outcome of a raid on the Cedarcrest Club several weeks ago.

SAYS CASH WAS DEMANDED.

"Officer Dugan came to me about 2 o'clock one morning," said Mrs. Reynolds. "He was alone that time. I and my two daughters went out to meet him. I didn't notice any evidence of his being intoxicated.

"He said to me: 'I want some change.'

"I told him I didn't think I should give him anything.

"'I'm within my rights; I have a club license and I am conducting my business properly,' I told him. I refuse i to give him any money.

"Later he came back. With him was John Walsh, an officer of Weymouth.

"Officer Dugan again demanded that I come across. I again refused him.

"Walsh had nothing to do with the demand of his for money. The second time Dugan came back he and Walsh were in liquor."

Inspector Goodhue of Quincy, who led the Cedarcrest raid, testified.

Mrs. Reynolds told me that Fogg had said to her everything would be all right with her as long as he remained in Braintree."

Goodhue said he found a "bar" in the club. When James H. Galvin, a Braintree policeman, took the stand, he was asked about the "bar."

"If that was a bra," testified Galvin, "then I don't know one. It might have been as much as a spice closet."

WHISKY KEYS IN COURT.

When another witness was testifying about liquor, Inspector Goodhue went out and returned to the courtroom with two kegs.

"What are those?" was asked of the witness.

"Whiskey kegs," was the reply.

In his suming up Attorney Kelley for Fogg scored Goodhue, called the case a disgrace to Braintree and said it was based on "Irrelevancy, immaterialism and the rankest hearsay evidence."

Town counsel Mellen summed up for Braintree. A decision was expected from Judge Avery late this afternoon.

Gov. Walsh Finds Office Door Locked

Governor Walsh was barred out of his office at the State House today. He was on the job too early. The Governor arrived at 8.50 with Secretary Mooney. He confidently walked to the door of his office and turned the knob.

The door didn't budge.

At the stroke of 9, the regular hour for opening the executive office, the door was opened and the Governor entered. The Governor spent a busy day today. Scores of callers, congratulatory telegrams, floral tributes and discussion of matters of state engrossed his attention.

The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor sent to Boston hospitals the flowers they received yesterday.

London Budget Buys Vanity Fair and Hearth and Home

The Price to Be Increased and the Publication Made Highest Class Weekly in England.

The London Budget Company has bought the London weekly publication known as Hearth and Home. It has also bought the old and famous English periodical called Vanity Fair. These three publications will be combined under the title of the best-known as Vanity Fair—and will be issued as the highest class weekly publication in England. The price will be raised from one penny, which the Budget now charges, to sixpence net, and the publication will be improved accordingly.

The extraordinary success of Nash's Magazine, which is published by the same owners, leads them to expect an equal success for the high grade and high priced weekly, which will result as the result of the combination of the three publications above mentioned.

RELEASE ON BAIL ASSURED

The question of releasing Harry K. Thaw on bail will be settled in Boston tonight or tomorrow morning.

Everything points to the release of the prisoner on bail. Jerome's backdown has made the Thaw forces jubilant. Harry himself feels sure of his release.

General Frank S. Streeter (chairman) and Mr. Charles P. Bancroft of Concord, N. H., and Dr. George Dimmer of Providence, R. I., three members of the Thaw sanity Commission, held the final hearing on the Thaw case at Concord today.

They have arranged to have Concord for Boston and tonight they will confer at the home of Dr. Morton H. Prince, No. 418 Beacon street. Dr. Prince is the fourth member of the commission. Illness prevented Dr. Prince from attending today's session at Concord.

REPORT FINDING IMMEDIATELY.

At Dr. Prince's home tonight the entire commission will consider its report on the Thaw case. There will probably be a second conference tomorrow morning.

The report of the commission's findings will be made immediately, said Attorney-General Stevens Cobbled.

"That depends on what develops at the conference."

At Concord other indications gained force hourly that Thaw will be recommended for bail by the commission and that Judge Edgar Aldrich of the United States District Court, who appointed the commission, will allow bail to issue.

There was a general feeling that Thaw will be out on bail within one week from today.

If released on bail Thaw will be free, it is supposed, to go anywhere in Federal jurisdiction, which means anywhere in the United States. This will be his first time since 1907 that he is able to leave the land of his confinement. He was arrested after he shot Stanford White more than seven years ago.

Share a Work-Bench With Opportunity

There are two kinds of colleges in this country of ours—both equally good. One teaches with books, the other with tools. Each turns out specialists.

They are much alike—the university and factory. Only the factory's training combines practice with theory. And opportunity sits at every work-bench.

If you are a young man and must earn your living, go to the factory. Take your ambition in your two hands and put it to work. Become the master of a trade, and yourself.

You'll find ample opportunity to enter the ranks if you watch the "Help Wanted" ads in the American. For Greater Boston's foremost manufacturers recruit their help here.

But if you have a preference for some particular line of work, you'll save time by inserting a "Situation Wanted" ad of your own. Today is the time.

RUSH ORDER TO BATTLESHIP STIRS MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9.—News from Washington that the battleship Minnesota has been ordered to proceed to Vera Cruz with 600 United States marines on board caused uneasiness in government circles here today.

Members of President Huerta's official family professed fear that President Wilson may be contemplating a change of policy. That section of the Mexican press friendly to Huerta expressed itself bitterly in its editorial columns. The concentration of warships and marines on the coast was characterized as "a hostile and provocative demonstration."

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, is expected back from Vera Cruz tomorrow. A report was current in diplomatic circles that Mr. O'Shaughnessy would bring a note to President Huerta from Special Envoy Lind, but it is believed that the relations between the United States embassy and Huerta will remain just as they have been in the past.

The National Railway's loss last year because of the revolution was estimated today to be $8,500,000.

LONG-RANGE FIGHT REPORTED IN PROGRESS NEAR MULA PASS

PRESIDIO, Texas, Jan. 9.—A long range fight between detachments of Constitutionalist and Federal riflemen is now on at Mula Pass, about twenty-two miles south of Ojinaga, Mexico, dispatches who came into Presidio today.

According to information believed to be authentic General Salazar is directing the main body of the rebel army from the point they were occupying immediately south of Ojinaga, and began to reform his lines and reorganize his artillery corps before making a concerted assault upon the Federal stronghold.

Reports that Villa had disappeared failed to lose the Federal force their entrenched positions in Ojinaga.

TRANSIT BOARD OPPOSES NEW TUNNEL PLANS

The Boston Transit Commission reported to the Legislature today against the proposed Bennett street station for the Washington street tunnel on the grounds of expense for construction and for operation, on account of the 5 per cent. grade on approaching the Elevated structure, the delay in operating time and the extra wear and tear on rolling stock.

Relative to routes for the proposed tunnel to Chelsea the commission suggested two routes, favoring one over the other, but indirectly opposing either by saying that the extension and loop now being built on the East Boston tunnel will increase facilities so that East Boston and Chelsea will be benefited.

Route A, the one favored the more, proposes a loop down under Hanover street, to Haymarket square subway station, under Sudbury street, connecting with the Scollay square station, under Hustle street and to Haymarket square again, with a main subway under Hanover street and extending into a tunnel under the harbor from Atlantic avenue to Winnisimmet square in Chelsea.

Route B proposes a similar loop, but with the main subway extending under Washington street, under the Charles River and the Charlestown Navy Yard and the Mystic River to the same terminus.

Route A would be 2.5 miles long and Route B 2.43 miles. The cost would be approximately $6,790,000 each for construction and land damages.

On the advisability of a tunnel from the Washington street tunnel to Sullivan square, Charlestown, to replace the present elevated structure, if the consent of the Elevated is gained, the Commission reports that, up to date the Elevated directors have not voted no consent to such plan and no action has been taken by the Commission.

On the advisability and cost of a short subway to connect the Dorchester tunnel, now building, with the South Station, the Commission says that the tunnel plans show exits and entrances to the South Station and but no estimates have been figured of the cost of a connecting tunnel therefore, because such connection is provided.

DR. DRAKE ASKS RIGHT TO ADOPT SERVANT GIRL

To show her appreciation of kindnesses bestowed by her housekeeper, Dr. Arathena B. Drake, eighty-six, of No. 25 G street, South Boston, has filed a petition in the Suffolk County Probate Court asking for the right to adopt her as a daughter. The housekeeper is Miss Matilda Bailey, fifty-eight, and she has been with Dr. Drake for thirty-eight years. There will be a hearing on the petition Wednesday.

Dr Drake is said to be the oldest woman physician in the United States. She was born in Lincolnville, Me. She comes of Scotch-Irish stock. Her maiden name was Smith, and her father held public office in Lincolnville, Me. Her mother's name was Adams. The latter's folks were also of Scotch-Irish extraction and settled in New Hampshire. They took part in the revolutionary war on the American side. Her mother's grandfather, though, was a Tory and lost his property in this State by confiscation by the revolutionists.

Dr. Drake was a personal friend of Wendell Phillips, Theodore Parker, Louisa M. Alcott, author of "Little Women," and of the latter's father, "whose ideas," said Dr. Drake, "were not of a hackneyed nature." Dr. Drake also met President Abraham Lincoln. She heard him speak in 1860 at the Revere House, Boston. She said Lincoln was homely in "looks and manners," but was "blessed richly in what he had to say." She still has copies of the Revere House deals with the preservation of the union.

"I've been a practising physician in South Boston for forty years," said Dr. Blake, who, despite her years, is well preserved. Her faculties are perfect.

"And I have no hesitancy in saying that I am the oldest woman physician in the United States," she continued.

"When my husband died Miss Bailey came to live with me. She has been a faithful companion. She is a woman of exemplary habits. She has been a daughter to me. I want to show her that I appreciate her kindnesses. That is why I want her to be recognized as my legally adopted daughter. I want her to be legal heir to all my property in case anything happens to me."

May de Sousa Would Darn Hubby's Socks

"I can think of no higher labor for myself than lovingly to mend my husband's socks," said May de Sousa, addressing the anti-suffrage tea in the Kensington building yesterday. "We admire the trained man, but woman should be different. Woman was meant to be a clinging vine. To cling to some good man is her true vocation. I never knew but one actress who was a suffragist."

INDIGESTION, GAS OR BAD STOMACH

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin ends all Stomach misery in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly? Ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, list this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered, you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive, and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

OF GREAT USE IN BREAKING UP COLDS

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil Is a Thing Long Desired

Every one knows the value of castor oil in breaking up fall and winter colds, but most people have found it very hard to take.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil does away with that objection. It is pure, simple castor oil without taste or odor. Nothing is added, nothing good taken out.

In making castor oil tasteless, Spencer Kellogg & Son of Buffalo have discovered a secret that has evaded chemists for 3,000 years.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil works better than the old evil-tasting, evil-smelling kind. It operates pleasantly, without griping, and does not upset the stomach. Children take it easily.

Do not confuse Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil with ordinary, prepared, mixed or flavored castor oils. It is the only true, pure, tasteless kind. Sold in all drug stores, not in bulk, but in 25c and 50c sizes. The public is protected by the trade mark—a green castor leaf bearing the signature—Kellogg's.

BARGE CAPTAIN CRUEL, CHILD WIFE ALLEGES

Alleging Captain Jerome Malloy, fifty, of the coal barge Devon, was cruel to her even on her wedding day, December 5, 1908, when she eloped, at sixteen, and became the step mother of four children, Mrs. Florence Mae Malloy has filed suit for divorce in Salem. Mrs Malloy was Miss Florence Mae Horne of Beverly.

Great interest was taken in the wedding of the couple by the officials of the Seamen's Orphan and Children's Friend Society, because of the fact that Miss Horne and three of Malloy's children had been inmates of the Carpenter Street Home. When it was announced that Malloy contemplated making Miss Horne his bride, the officials at the home raised a protest, but their pleas were unavailing.

HARVARD MEN CAN NOW HIRE NOTES WRITTEN

Harvard men flocked today to the Letter Writing Bureau just established by a group of enterprising undergraduates, for they saw in the service it advertised to the college men, the crimson, a relief from many bad quarter-hours in writing for money, corresponding with the sweetheart or explaining to the dean he expects to settle next month.

The bureau is conducted by students who know intimately the quandaries and quarrels into which the average undergraduates often find themselves. Through the advertisement in the Crimson it is modestly "Sighing Lovers! Undutiful Sons!" and full of the suave way in which the bureau experts could write a letter that could accomplish practically anything in the persuasive line of the English language. Moreover, prices are charged, according to the finesse it is necessary to employ.

STRAW VOTE SHOWS KENNY'S GREAT LEAD

Eighteen of the twenty men who participated in a straw vote for the mayoralty at the monthly dinner of the Master Carpenters' and Wood Workers' Association cast their ballots for Thomas J. Kenny. Only two voted for Congressman Curley.

James A. Sanborn, seventy-six, of No. 54 Montgomery street, South End, Civil War veteran and proprietor of a printing establishment, has started a sticker campaign for Mayor Fitzgerald.

The Mayor today warns people against voting for him, declaring: "A vote for me is thrown away." Mayor Fitzgerald adds that he knows nothing about Sanborn, and that he does not recall ever meeting him.

Mayor Fitzgerald, concluding his warning to the voters not to use the stickers says: "I earnestly hope that every citizen will take this point of view. I cannot understand Sanborn's motives, as he must certainly know his wishes in this matter."

CALLED CURLEY PLOT.

By some it is considered a plot laid by the Curley men to draw votes from Kenny.

Readers wearing Curley buttons attacked an automobile containing newspaper men after the enthusiastic rally for Kenny at Grove Hall. Stones were thrown and blows exchanged as the roughs sought to seize the automobile. No arrests were made.

At the rally in Jubilee Hall, Roxbury, a Curley man attacked Councillor Watson, kicking him before the bystanders could get between the men. A few minutes before the Councillor had made the charge that Curley was backed by the "corporation, the Edison Electric Light Company and the Consolidated Gas Company, having failed to obtain valuable concessions from Kenny.

"FIGHT WON," SAYS KENNY.

In a signed appeal today, Kenny says:

"In the last hours of this campaign it has come to this. Do you want it understood all over the country that the city of Boston has fallen into the hands of leadership which stands for everything opposed to good government, which stands for the use of the taxpayers' money to build up a personal political machine, which stands for a return of the old discarded system, rotten with corruption, waste and inefficiency?

"I appeal to every citizen of Boston who has the fair name and reputation of this city at heart to stand shoulder to shoulder with me in this contest. I ask you, do you want to see the city turned over to a gang of unscrupulous politicians? The fight is won. I will be elected by an overwhelming majority. Let us make it a great victory. Boston expects every man to do his duty at the polls on January 13."

Henry Ford Tells of Profit-Sharing Plan

NEW WYORK, Jan. 9.—Henry Ford, president of the Ford Automobile Company, is at the Hotel Belmont and spent last night at the Automobile Show.

"Mr. Couzens and I are working out the details of the profit sharing plan recently decided upon for the Ford works in Detroit," he said, "but we are not yet quite ready to make the particulars public.

"It is a big undertaking. There are no qualifications to the offer. My son does not need or require the money. He is a worker as am I, and he quite approves of what I am doing."

Efforts to Settle Copper Strike Fail

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 9.—A settlement of the copper strike in the Calumet region appeared to be far off today. Governor Ferris, after failure to bring the warring factions together, will leave the copper country, while Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, is prepared to stay and direct the strike "to the bitter end."

Hope of bringing about a settlement of the labor difficulties vanished when the mine operators refused point blank to recognize the Western Federation of Miners.

KENNY STOCK TAKES A JUMP IN THE BETTING

Betting took a leap today in political circles. Kenny stock jumped four points—that is, political sharps who had been betting even that Kenny would beat Curley gave odds of five to two. One wager of $1,000 to $800 on Kenny was placed by several business men in the hands of a South End haberdasher.

* * *

"The voters of this section are undecided," said a Hyde Park Democrat. "They are attending rallies and listening to the arguments, and may be relied upon to make a wise selection in their choice for Mayor. The Republicans and Independents of my section are for Kenny to a man."

* * *

Former Representative Fred M. J. Sheenan, a former member of the Ward 17 Tammany Club, is nightly stumping for his former chieftain, Congressman James M. Curley. Sheenan's boom friend, Thomas F. Curley (no relation to Jim) is hurling broadsides of political shrapnel into the camp of his namesake. He is a Kenny man to the hilt.

* * *

Councillor Walter Ballantyne, Candidate Kenny's campaign manager on the Republican end, feels confident that his protege will get more than 1,600 votes in Ward 17. That is Ballantyne's home ward, and he is very popular there.

* * *

An auto truck decorated with Curley banners and filled with men and boys who were on their way to a Curley rally in Dorchester, had a narrow escape from injury. The machine skidded and came near hitting an electric car.

* * *

With 300 boys trying to drown out his speech with jeers and cat calls at the Ward 17 rally, Councillor Walter Collins, a Kenny supporter, was successful in putting his argument "across." He did so well that he turned the hostile element into friends. Collins has Congressional aspirations, and is looked upon as a Curley successor from the Twelfth District.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD, TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life-saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Rub Rheumatic, Aching Joints

Rub Pain Away With a Small Trial Bottle of Old "St. Jacobs Oil"

Rheumatism is "pain only." Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" directly upon the "tender spot" and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and can not burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief and a cure await you. "St. Jacobs Oil" is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains and swellings.

'Salome' Barred, New Bill by Mme. Aguglia

Mme. Mimi Aguglia and her company of Italian players at the Hub Theatre last evening, having been barred by Mayor Fitzgerald from presenting "Salome," gave instead, "Nemmeno un Bacio" ("Not Even a Kiss"), a play in four acts by Roberto Bracco.

Mme. Aguglia, in impersonation of Nannetta was moving and admirably composed. It was in every respect the best work of her stay here. Conradi Liberti was fascinating as Mr. Dondini. Mme. Angeloni, as Clottide Cormeieli, was voluble. Sig. Sterni was excellent as Enrico, while Mme. Zoppetti was piquant as Claudine Ramier.

The Rev. Cortland Myers is credited with leading the protest against "Salome."

Mme. Aguglia said she didn't care. "Salome is a very bad woman, but I play her because she is—how do you say?—very difficult and artistic," she observed.

BUSINESS MEN INDORSE CHURCH DAY

Boston business men are holding meetings to support the earnest in their campaign for Go-to-Church Day, Sunday, February 8. At an informal gathering of business men at Room No. 414 of the Phillips Building, R. M. Atherly of the Tremont Temple Brotherhood urged upon the men present the importance of this great event for this city.

"We want everyone stirred in this city about the importance of church-going," said Mr. Atherly. "The churches do not get the moral and financial support they deserve.

MUST HELP CHURCHES.

"We could not do without them. A churchless community is something to be dreaded. This Go-to-Church Day for Boston will start some people thinking. Let us business men help the ministers everywhere in our power to get people out to church Sunday, February 8, and keep them going to church.

"In Boston a century ago more people, in proportion to the population, attended the churches than they do now.

"Why are people staying away from the churches? Why are so few young people found in them? These matters must be met. We must arouse this whole city and the neighboring towns to what the churches are standing for.

"I call upon every business man in Boston to get into line with others who are going to make this the greatest religious day for Greater Boston. You can't do anything better than to come to the support of the churches. Lend your automobiles for that day. Help around the ministers in your several communities and make the day the beginning of greater things for the churches."

More than two thousand Go-to-Church Day buttons will be worn next Sunday by the congregation of Tremont Temple. The Rev. Cortland Myers, pastor of the church, will distribute them as reminders, and will talk to all about the duty of going to church regularly.

CASSIDY TELLS PLAN TO LOWER COST OF LIVING

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

High cost of living and plans for reducing prices of food supplies to consumers have been given much consideration by people in every part of the United States lately. Indignation meetings were held, plans were submitted by various women's clubs—and the public has been aroused so much—that legislation has been introduced in Congress to prevent this extortion and abuse in the necessities of life.

Governor Walsh in his inaugural address very wisely proposes, as one the reforms needed, the right of cities and towns to deal in the necessaries of life in times of public distress. The Governor should receive the unanimous support of the Legislature in this feature.

The most formidable organization for lowering the cost of farm products and bringing producer and consumer in direct touch with one another was started in Philadelphia yesterday.

Mr. Wright showed how he purchased a barrel of fine potatoes at $1.40, including the barrel. The freight was thirty-five cents and the carriage to his home fifty cents. The barrel stood him $2.25. The point was the farmer received as much for his potatoes from other sources. Mr. Wright found these same potatoes selling at $6 a barrel at retail. The middleman had got his work in.

Freight, according to Mr. Sisters of the Lehigh Valley, was surprisingly low, and the farmer was not getting too much for his products. The trouble is the farmer cannot get his goods to the market advantageously. Just where organization will help him was then pointed out. "If the farmer could save all his waste, he would grow rich," said Mr. Stevens.

IS YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE COATED?

If Cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue mother! It coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and intestines need a thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is cross, fretful, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, is feverish, has stomach-ache, sore throat, nasty breath, bad cold, tongue coated, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well child full child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

500,000 ARE STARVING IN THE BALKANS

SALONIKA, Jan. 8.—Five hundred thousand men, women and children are starving in the Balkans. The two Balkan wars have completely ravaged the Southeastern peninsula of Europe, left the country in waste and the people penniless.

Rev. Edward Haskell, of the American mission, declared today that it is imperative that help come at once. He has written fresh appeals to Arthur Symonds, secretary to the Balkan relief committee in London, to Miss K. McQueen, secretary to the Macedonian relief committee, and to American church and relief organizations.

"The world must open its heart or an unparalleled blight of death will fall upon the Balkans," declared Rev. Mr. Haskell. "If I could only paint a true picture of the misery and horror from famine and cold.

"This has been an unusually severe Winter and thousands are without adequate clothing. If only some of the American millionaires famous for their charities would find the call the result would be a blessing."

REPORT NEW HAVEN HAS YIELDED ON B. & M. AND TROLLEY LINES

An official announcement is to be made within a short time of the immediate divorcing of the New Haven and Boston & Maine, according to a report which stirred Boston financial and business circles this afternoon. This follows Governor Walsh's demand for the speedy separation of the two roads, and means a surrender of the New Haven to Attorney-General McReynolds at Washington.

Today's report states that the Boston & Maine is to be placed in a trusteeship for several years for development and sale, and that the New Haven is also to divorce itself simultaneously of its Rhode Island and Connecticut trolleys and its New York, Westchester & Boston railway.

At the same time as this report came a statement from the directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce declaring that it is "settled" that the Boston & Maine and New Haven are to be severed, and calling on all the people of New England to "pull together to put the Boston & Maine on its feet." In this the directors declared they agreed wholly with Governor Walsh's attitude as expressed in his inaugural.

REMEDIES OUTLINED.

Here is what the Chamber directors urge as their remedy to secure "most of the benefits which might come from a possible receivership for the Boston & Maine and which will avoid the inconveniences and losses which would result from a receivership":

New England ownership of the Boston & Maine.

A railroad run solely in the interest of its stockholders and the New England public.

Revision of unduly burdensome contracts like the Pullman and American Express Company contracts.

Readjustment of inequitable leases of other roads.

Hearsty co-operation by the public.

Relieving the road of al unjust burdens.

That the government cease forcing the road to carry mail matter at a loss.

An "inevitable" sacrifice by the present Boston & Maine stockholders.

Co-operation of New England financiers and all business interests.

Confidence by investors in the road's "new era."

Action by the road's management to make the system a model of efficiency and economy.

Loyalty on the part of the road's employes.

The confidence of everybody in the road's future.

A "square deal" for the road.

The statement concludes:

MUST SEPARATE.

"It is settled that the Boston & Maine is to be separated from the New Haven. No one knows in whose hands the future control and management of the Boston & Maine will be. They should be New England mean, representing New England capital, and of such character and reputation that the people who put their money into the road and the people who pay the road for services rendered buy both feel assured that hereafter the road will be managed wisely, efficiently and prudently.

"New England never yet has lacked the courage, the capital or the public spirit to do whatever is vitally necessary for New England—and nothing is more vitally necessary to the future welfare of New England than a well-equipped and well-managed railroad, conducted solely in the interest of its stockholders and of the territory served by it. We have a right to expect that those men to whom the people of New England have been accustomed to look for financial leadership will not be found unwilling to assume leadership and responsibility in this emergency."

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous, constipated matter, gases and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache. Cascarets will remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bile and constipation poison move on and out of the bowels. One taken tonight straightens you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Children need Cascarets, too.

Schlitz Brown Bottle Claims Authenticated

by Dr. Robert Wahl, President of the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology. We reprint from his letter.

"Our observations, extending over the last twenty-five years, have convinced us beyond a doubt that exposure of beer to light has a very detrimental influence on its quality generally, but especially upon the flavor of the beer.

We have tested beers repeatedly in this direction, placing the bottles into direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable, on account of the peculiar odor developed.

The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are therefore recommendable."

He quotes famous authorities to corroborate his opinion

Authorities on the subject of the detrimental influence of light on beer are:

C. Lintner, Lehrbuch der Bierbrauerei 1875, S. 343.
Beck, Zeitschrift für das gesamte Brauwesen, 1882, S. 370.
V. Huth Der Bierbrauer 1876, S. 127.
Ney, Allg. Zeitschr. f. Bierbr. u. Malzfabr., 1878, S. 273

Light cannot harm Schlitz in Brown Bottles. It is made pure and then kept pure.

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous

ELOPED WITH GIRL OF 16; IS HELD; ESCAPES

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 9.—Search was begun here today by the federal authorities for Joel M. Foster, a wealthy resident of Brown's Mills, N. J., who has disappeared after being held in $2,000 bail for a hearing on January 14 before United States Commissioner Richard Jones, Jr., on a charge of violating the Mann white slave act.

Foster's companion, Miss Delilah Bradley, sixteen, of Pemberton, N. J., who was being detained in $500 bond as a witness against Foster, has also disappeared, apparently with the man, although she was being watched by secret service agents. Both were at separate hotels, but were evidently in communication with each other despite their guards.

Foster is married and has a daughter. He is the son of J. M. Foster, president of the International Correspondence School at Scranton, Pa., a commercial institution of national renown.

Delilah Bradley is the daughter of a baggage master on the Pennsylvania Railroad. She was a member of the Pemberton Methodist Church and taught in its Sunday school.

RATED AS MILLIONAIRE.

Foster is rated as a millionaire and formerly was head of the International Poultry Sales Company at Brown's Mills. He is a member of the Mount Holly Gun Club and a leading New Jersey sportsman.

On December 14, last, Miss Bradley left her home and work. Four days later, just as the search was under way for Miss Bradley, her employer disappeared. He had drawn $2,000 from the bank. Suspicion arose immediately that Foster and Delilah had eloped.

Dispatches from Mobile relate that, on December 23, five days after Foster left his Northern home, a striking couple registered at the best hotel in that city as "Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Foster of New York." The young "wife"—she was thought to be about twenty—was admired for her girlish beauty and envied for her gowns and diamonds. Foster talked "big money," especially of building a large sanitarium. "Theodore Shonts is interested in the scheme," said Foster.

But all this time the United States government, in the person of secret service agents, had been on the trail of the couple.

ARRESTED IN HOTEL.

The secret service men did not hurry. They let evidence against Foster accumulate. They had been put on the case right after Foster left home and had followed the couple immediately to Mobile.

Feeling at Pemberton, N. J., against Foster is bitter. There is talk of tar and feathers for the man when he returns. The girl is absolved from all blame.

Delilah's father, Henry C. Bradley, says:

"Foster lured my little girl away from home. He got her under his power when she was in his employ. She will be brought home at once."

Foster's wife is heart broken and her social circle is giving her constant sympathy.

Gov. Baldwin Pays Tribute to Tobacco

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 9.—Tobacco as the producer of solid comfort, and the pipe as the poor man's fire on the hearth, were pictured today by Governor Simeon E. Baldwin today in welcoming the New England tobacco growers to this city.

"In 1670 Virginia was exporting twelve million pounds of tobacco," he said. "That represents a good deal of solid comfort. I have never used tobacco myself, but I am free to own that it has brought a great deal of real pleasure into the world, and to the poor man, most of all. A pipe in his mouth on a cold evening takes for him the place of the fire on the hearth that is the luxury of the rich."

THIN WOMEN FALSE TYPE, SAYS EXPERT

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 9.—This city is just now paying the closest attention to a scientific, eugenic and euthenic discussion of how thin a woman ought to be.

The National Conference for Race Betterment opened its sessions here yesterday, and the argument started over the definition given by Dr. Richard Hoot Smith of Grand Rapids of the ideal—eugenic—woman. Said he:

"She is a comparatively built woman with a deep chest, steady nerves and enough flesh to round out the anatomical angles.

"The slender, thin woman so favored by fashion nowadays is not the perfect type.

"She is a defective variety."

Whereupon millions of sylph-like creatures from the Golden Gate to Sandy Hook make loud protestations and anxiously listen to hear more.

The conference is the first of a series of annual meetings to be inaugurated for the betterment of the race. Two hundred men and women attended the first session. An executive committee is to be appointed, including, probably, the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, Professor Irving Fisher, Dr. C. B. Davenport of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, President of the American Medical Association, and Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, host of this initial meeting.

Dr. Smith, in elaborating his discussion of the proper—eugenic—woman, said:

"We have no reason for believing that modern woman is any worse off than her grandmother was in the 'good old days.' Women nowadays feel about as well, look a lot better, and are generally just as efficient as the women of dead and gone generations. As a matter of fact, uncivilized women had their weak points just the same as women nowadays.

"The modern defective type exists not because of any modern fad of fashion or of diet or of diversion, but because the same type was found among the progenitors of the women of today. The only time to correct faults of health is childhood."

GREAT AUTO SHOW DRAWING TOWARD CLOSE

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—But one day more and the motor show will become a matter of history. One of the most interesting displays is that of the Maxwell Motor Company, whose New England and Boston representatives, R. F. Coburn and C. H. Lucas, are on the ground. The Maxwell "25" is shown in three body styles—a streamline five-passenger touring car, a two-passenger roadster and a six-passenger town car. In addition, a stripped chassis, enamelled white, and the Maxwell "25" light power plant and transmission are on display.

The latest Chalmers is a light six, known as the 6-48. The engine has an en bloc casting and the cylinders are 3½x5½. The transmission has three speeds and is in the rear axle. Cooling is by thermo-syphon and the ignition is the Atwater-Kent system. Both models have the Chalmers-Fuhrs electric starting system.

The Oakland display consists of five models of four and six-cylinder types in a wide range of body designs. Cars with both right and left drive are included. Models 43 and 60 have right side drive, and 36, 38 and 62 left side drive and centre control. The streamline body is a feature of several of the models.

"All everybody seems to want to see is the Bisoco, the small car that Benjamin Briscoe has been at work on in France. The Briscoe is in two models, a cycle car and a small touring car. The touring car has a 2⅜-16 inch x 3¼ inch four-cylinder motor, three speed transmission, shaft drive to bevel gear, 103-inch wheel base and 30-inch wheels. The cycle car has 2¼-inch x 3¼-inch four-cylinder motor, friction transmission and chain drive.

The new Cameron is water-cooled, has a pointed radiator, left drive, four-speed transmission, possesses electric lighting and starting equipment and is withal an attractive low-priced car of up-to-date appearance. It is offered in five different body types.

The Saxon is a small, low-priced roadster, in which have been incorporated almost entirely structural features of accepted type.

THE WOMAN THOU GAVEST ME

Hall Caine's Greatest Story

If You Did Not See Opening Instalments Read This First

MARY O'NEILL begins her story by telling of how her father, born in Ellan, the son of peasants, had gone to America, become rich, and had then returned to his birthplace, where he married the daughter of Captain O'Neill, of the O'Neills, and had managed the estate from Daniel Neale in Daniel O'Neill. She tells of her own birth and of her father's disappointment for if a boy had been born he would have been Lord Ras, by right of his mother.

She tells of Father Dan, the priest, and of her mother, an invalid from her earliest memory, and of her Aunt Bridget, who came to keep house for Daniel O'Neill and to look after her daughter and her stepson, Peter. Her aunt soon came to run the house and to domineer over Mary and her mother and to make them both very unhappy. It was during which Mary's father always took the side of her aunt, were many, and after one of them he declared that the children must all go to school.

One Christmas eve she hears the "waits" and conceives the idea of singing the waits herself. In her impatience she forgets to put on either hat or cloak and steals out with nothing but a pair of thin slippers and a velvet frock that leaves her neck and arms bare. She is brought into the home of Doctor Conrad and is kept there all night. In the morning she makes the acquaintance of the doctor's son, a boy named Martin, whose greatest delight is to play he is an explorer.

She is sent to school, where she teaches for a fortune of her aunt's. One day the teacher catches her whispering and is about to whip her, when she is saved by Martin Conrad.

One day Mary and Martin go "exploring" in a boat and land on a rock. Their boat floats away and late at night they are found, fast asleep in each other's arms. It is decided, against her mother's protests, to send Mary to a convent in Rome. She travels in care of Father Dan, the priest, and on the journey she meets young Lord Ras. He tries to kiss her and she strikes him in the face, but finally, at the intercession of Father Dan, she offers him her lips.

At the convent she is put in charge of Sister Angela and makes a friend of a girl named Mildred Rankes. She greatly admires an American girl named Alma Lier, but one day her idol makes fun of her and her heart is nearly broken.

MY GIRLHOOD

Thirteenth Chapter—Continued

At the next moment Mildred stepped back to me, and putting her arm about my waist she said:

"Never mind, Mary. She's a heartless thing. Don't have anything to do with her."

But all the sunshine had gone out of the day for me now and I cried for hours. I was still crying, silently but bitterly, when, at 8 o'clock, we were saying the night prayers, and I saw Alma, who was in the opposite benches, whispering to one of the girls who sat next to her and then looking straight across at me.

A RECONCILIATION

It was 9 o'clock when we went to bed I was crying more than ever, so that after the good-night bell had been rung and the lights had been put down, Sister Angela, not knowing the cause of my sorrow, stepped up to my bed before going down stairs for her own studies, and whispered:

"You mustn't fret for home, Mary. You will soon get used to it."

But hardly had I been left alone, with the dull pain I could find no ease for, when somebody touched me on the shoulder, and, looking up, I saw a girl in her nightdress standing beside me. It was Alma and she said:

"Say, little girl, is your name O'Neill?"

Trembling with nervousness I answered that it was.

"Then you belong to the O'Neills of Ellan."

Still trembling I told her that I did.

"Why, she said in quite another tone, and then I saw that by some means I had begun to look different in her eyes.

After a moment she sat on the side of my bed and asked questions about my home—if it was not large and very old, with big stone staircases, great old open fireplaces, and broad terraces, and beautiful walks going down to the sea.

I was so filled with the joy of finding myself looking grand in Alma's eyes that I answered "yes" and "yes" without thinking too closely about her questions, and my tears were all brushed away when she said:

"I know somebody, who lived in your house once, and I'll tell her all about you."

She stayed a few moments longer, and when going off she whispered:

"Hope you don't feel badly about my laughing in the garden today. I didn't mean a thing. Half any of the girls laugh again just say you're Alma Lier's friend and she's going to take care of you."

I could hardly believe my ears. Some great new splendor had suddenly dawned upon me and I was very happy.

I did not know then that the house which Alma had been talking of was not my father's house, but Castle Ras. I did not know then that the person who had lived there was her brother, and that in her comical and reckless youth she had been something to the sad Lord Ras who had wished my father and sworn at my grandmother.

I did not know anything that was dead and buried in the past, shrouded and veiled in the future. I only knew that Alma had called herself my friend and promised to take care of me. So with a glad heart I went to sleep.

FOURTEENTH CHAPTER.

ALMA kept her word, though perhaps her method of protection was such as would have commended itself only to the heart of a child.

It consisted in calling me Margaret Mary after our patron saint of the Sacred Heart. In taking me round the garden during recreation as if I had been a pet poodle, and, above all, in making my bed the scene of the conversations which some of the girls held at night when they were supposed to be asleep.

The secrecy of these gatherings flattered me, and when the unclouded noon, in the depths of the deep blue Italian sky, looked in on my group of girls in their nightdresses, huddled together on my bed, with my own little body between, I had a feeling of dignity and self-importance and awe.

Of course Alma was the chief spokeswoman at these whispered conferences. Sometimes she told us of her drives into the Borghese Gardens, where she saw the King and Queen, or to the Hunt on the Campagna, where she met the flower of the aristocracy, or to the Park, where the Municipal band played in the pavilion, or to the Corso, where the carriages in the sunshine, and officers in blue cloaks saluted them and smiled.

Sometimes she indicated her intentions for the future, which was certainly not to be devoted to retreats and novenas, or to witness another black dress as long as she lived, and if she married (which was uncertain) it was not to be to an American, but to a Frenchman, because Frenchmen had "family" and "blood," or perhaps to an Englishman, if he was a member of the House of Lords, in which case she would attend all the receptions and coronations, and take tea at the Carlton, where she would eat meringues glacées every day, and have as many eclairs as she liked.

And sometimes she would tell us the stories of the novels which she bribed one of the washing-women to smuggle into the convent—stories of love and their lovers, and of intoxicating dreams of kissing and fondling, at which the girls sat with bated breath, and which, in spite of all our fear-off suggestions of sexual mysteries still unexplored, would laugh and shudder, and then Alma would say:

"But hush, girls! Margaret Mary will be shocked."

Occasionally these conferences would be interrupted by Mildred's voice from the other end of the dormitory, where she would raise her head from her pillow and say:

"Alma Lier, you ought to be ashamed of yourself—keeping that child up when she ought to be asleep, instead of listening to your wicked stories."

"Hellos, Mother Mildred, is that you?" Alma would answer, and then the girls would laugh, and Mildred was supposed to be covered with confusion.

A BROKEN PROMISE

One night Sister Angela's footsteps were heard on the stairs, and then the girls flew back to their beds, where, with the furtive instinct of their ages and sex, they pretended to be sleeping as soundly when the Sister entered the room. But the Sister was not deceived, and walking up the aisle between the beds she said in an angry tone:

"Alma Lier, if this ever occurs again I'll step down to the Reverend Mother and tell her all about you."

Little as I was, I saw that between Alma and Sister Angela there was a secret feud, which must soon break into open rupture, but for my part I was entirely happy, being still proud of Alma's protection and only feeling any misgivings when Mildred's melancholy eyes were looking at me.

Thus week followed week until we were close upon the Christmas holidays, when we were to be permitted to go home before the feast, being counted the days to the holidays. I counted them, too, and when anybody talked of her brother I thought of Martin Conrad, though his faithful little figure was fading away from me, and when anybody spoke of her mother I remembered my mother, for whom I had no affection never did have.

But, within a week from the time for breaking up, the Reverend Mother sent for me, and still a sinking heart I went to her room, knowing well what she was going to say.

"You are not to go home for the holidays this time, my child. You have to remain here, and Sister Angela is to stay to take care of you."

She had a letter from Father Dan, telling her that my mother was still unwell, and for that and other reasons it was considered best that I should not return at Christmas.

Father Dan had written a letter to me also, beginning, "My dear daughter in Jesus," and ending "Yours in St. Mary," in which the faithful priest could not fulfil his promise, for now I was not to be left alone, but Aunt Bridget was more difficult than ever, so perhaps I should be happier at the convent.

A BITTER BLOW

It was a bitter blow, though the biggest part of it lay in the fear that the girls would think I was of so little importance to my people that they did not care to see me.

But the girls were too eager about their own concerns to care much about me, and even on the very last day and at the very last moment, when everything was bustle and excitement, and being kissed by downstairs, and everybody was kissing everybody else, and wishing each other a Happy Christmas, and everything away like mad things, and I alone was being left, Alma herself, before she stepped into a carriage in which a stout lady wearing furs was waiting to receive her, only said:

"Bye, Margaret Mary! Take care of Sister Angela."

Next day the Reverend Mother went off to her cottage at Nemi, and the other nuns and novices to their friends in the country, and then Sister Angela and I were alone in the big empty convent, except for two elderly lay sisters who cooked for us, and the chaplain, who lived by himself in a little white but like a cell sided about at the farthest corner of the garden.

We moved our quarters to a room in the front of the house, so as to look out over the city, down into the big piazza which was full of traffic, and after a while we had many cheerful hours together.

During the days before Christmas we spent our mornings in visiting the churches and basilicas where there were little illuminated models of the Nativity, with the Virgin and the Infant Jesus in the stable among the straw. The afternoons we spent at home in the garden, where the chaplain, in his black soutane and biretta, was always sitting under the old trees, reading his breviary.

THE CHAPLAIN

His name was Father Giovanni and he was a tall young man with a long, thin, pale face, and when Sister Angela first took me up to him she said:

"This is our Margaret Mary."

Then his sad face broke into warm sunshine, and he stroked my head, and sent me away to skip with the skipping rope, while he and Sister Angela sat together under the trees and afterwards walked to and fro in the avenue between the stone pines and the wall, until they came to his cell in the corner, where she craned her neck at the open door as if she would have liked to go in and make things more tidy and comfortable.

On Christmas Day we had currant cake in honor of the feast, and Sister Angela asked Father Giovanni to come to tea, and he came, and was quite cheerful, so that when the Sister, who was quite merry herself, signalled to me to take some mistletoe from the bottom of a picture I held it over his head and kissed him from behind. Then he snatched me up in his arms and kissed me back, and we had a great romp round the chairs and the tables.

But the Ave Maria began to ring from the churches, and Father Giovanni according to the rule of our convent, having to go, he blessed me again, and then I said:

"Why don't you kiss Sister Angela, too?"

At that they only looked at each other and laughed, but after a moment he kissed her hand, and then she went downstairs to see him out into the street.

When she came back her eyes were sparkling and her cheeks were flushed, and that night, when she took away her black and white ribbons, and got on going to bed, she stood before a looking glass and wound her beautiful light hair round her head and curled it over her forehead in the way it was worn by the ladies we saw in the streets.

I think it was two nights later that she told me I was to go to bed early because Father Giovanni was not well and she would have to go over to see him.

She went, and I got into bed, but I could not sleep, and while I lay waiting for Sister Angela I listened to some men who as they crossed the piazza were singing, in tremulous voices and their mandolines and guitars, what I believed to be love songs, for I had begun to learn Italian.

"Oh bella Nase. Oh sul beats [illegible] Oh bella Nase."

It was late when Sister Angela came back, and then she was breathing hard, as if she had been running. I asked if Father Giovanni's sickness was worse, and she said no, it was better, and I was to say nothing about it. But she could not rest and at last she said:

"Didn't we forget to say our prayers, Mary?"

So I got up again and Sister Angela said one of the beautiful prayers out of our prayer book. But her voice was very low and when she came to the words:

"O Father of all mankind, forgive all sinners who repent of their sins," she broke down altogether.

I thought she was ill, but she said it was only a cold she had caught in crossing the garden and I was to go to sleep like a good girl and think no more about her.

But in the middle of the night I awoke, and Sister Angela was crying.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Strength for Those With Weak Lungs

Sufferers with weak lungs need upbuilding. Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the throat and lungs has been found to be very beneficial to many cases where lungs have been affected. Don't take our word for it, but investigate yourself. Here is a typical case, taken from among many:

Springfield, Mass.

Gentlemen:—In September, 1911, I began to lose flesh and was in a bad condition, until I weighed less than 120 lbs. I went to see a lung specialist, and he told me that my lungs were weak, and that I would have to go to a sanatorium. In the meantime, a friend of mine wanted me to try Eckman's Alterative. I began taking it, and it built me up so that I am better by my average weight, 140 lbs. I cannot speak too highly of Eckman's Alterative."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many cases' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics nor habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write The Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

Since the establishment of steamship connection between Boston and the Pacific coast the receipts of foodstuffs from the west coast have increased enormously, especially of dried and canned fruits. The last ship to arrive brought 16,000 boxes of prunes, 13,000 boxes of dried peaches and apricots, 600 boxes of raisins and big consignments of canned fruits. In addition there were big consignments of canned salmon.

Fish is scarce in quantity, but there is a great variety offered for sale. Smelts are coming in much more plentiful and the finnan haddie are cheap, selling at three pounds for a quarter. The big smelts, however, are still selling at 25 cents a pound, according to size and quality.

Strawberries are more plentiful than they have been at this season, and the receipts increase daily. The price remains stationary at 75 cents a box, the demand keeping pace with the receipts.

The receipts of California oranges are increasing, and very good ones are now selling for 25 cents a dozen.

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS

First dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" relieves all grippe misery.

Don't stay stuffed-up!

Quit blowing and snuffling! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound," taken every two hours until three doses are taken, will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold within the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages; stops nasty discharge of nose running; relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known, and costs only 25 cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance, is tasteless, and causes no inconvenience. Don't accept a substitute.

CONSTANT SUFFERER FROM SKIN TROUBLE

For Years. Pimples of Worst Kind On Face and Body. Itched and Burned Badly. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

111 Pleasant St., Bennington, Vt.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from skin trouble in all its dreadful forms such as pimples on face and body. My pimples were the worst of the kind and they itched and burned badly causing sores to form. The skin around them was red and at times inflamed. I lost many nights' rest on account of irritation. About five months ago I started using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and five months' treatment cured me completely and to-day I feel like a new man." (Signed) Richard Voss, May 10, '13.

DARK BLUE BLISTER ON HAND

66 Loveland St., Middletown, Conn.—"My son's trouble started with a dark blue blister on the hand and it got worse every day. It started with a pain and at one time it was all blue and swollen. He lost his night's rest and could not use his hand at all. I treated it with everything and nothing helped. He had it two weeks and at last I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment two weeks and they healed his hand up very nicely; the cure was complete." (Signed) Mrs. Carl Herrmann, Jan. 1, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Mr. Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

BANKERS JOIN IN DEMAND FOR REGIONAL HERE

to be established, one will be located in Boston."

Secretary McAdoo said:

KNOW BOSTON'S NEED.

"The committee is not here on a junket, but is here for business. This is an economic problem and not a political one.

"We know the commercial importance of Boston and do not have to be told about that. What we chiefly desire from you gentlemen is information regarding New England, and whether a regional bank establishment here should include all of New England, or if not, what part of New England."

Elwyn G. Preston declared that New England is a "geographical entity."

Mr. Preston quoted figures to show that Boston's financial importance had increased, between 1900 and 1910 more than had that of any other city save New York.

Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the Directors of the Port of Boston, said:

"With eight banks to be established with Boston third in bank clearings and fourth in bank deposits among the cities in this country—only overbearing reasons could prevent the establishment of a bank here."

DENIAL BY McADOO.

He told of the tremendous growth of the port, and declared it will soon compare favorably with New York.

Secretary McAdoo, in the course of the hearing, took occasion to heatedly deny the editorial statement of one Boston paper that he "favored the tariff bill because it would 'get' New England. No ex-Englander could despise me more than I would despise myself if that were true," he declared.

"Its requirements are divergent," he said. "Money is used in highly technical lines which are known root and branch to Boston and are almost utterly unknown in New York.

"Boston never has been financially dependent upon New York."

Secretary McAdoo added:

"I have an unstinted admiration for the people of New England and for the wonderful part they have played in the making of our beloved country."

Professor Sprague of Harvard said there would be three classes of regional banks under the reserve act, the first in regions where the banks regularly have a surplus, the second where the banks have usually a surplus, but need aid at certain times of the year, and the third class in regions where the banks regularly have insufficient funds and need assistance.

"Boston would be in the first class," said Professor Sprague.

"ALL NEW ENGLAND."

Secretary McAdoo asked Professor Sprague:

"Should all New England or only part be included in the Boston reserve bank?"

"I think you will find," replied the Harvard expert, "an entirely new state to bank exchange under the new bill, and the artificial conditions of bank clearance cease. Boston will naturally serve New England."

Mayor Fitzgerald first thanked the two Secretaries warmly for their expressions of "fair play," then said:

"We feel that in Boston we have been losing our influence in the New England industrial centres to the West and South of us by reason of the tremendous financial power wielded by New York. We wish, by re-establishing ourselves financially with these cities and these centres, to guard against this power which has built up New York at the expense of Boston and other places."

DEMAND FAIR PLAY.

The Mayor cited figures of the commercial importance of Boston and New York, to show that the influence of New York on New England finances is artificial and unnatural. Then he added:

"Boston witnessed the birth of this government. Boston sacrificed greatly for its preservation. We are jealously.

"We demand and expect fair play and, from your attitude and what we know of you, we believe we are going to get it."

President Hoyt of the Shoe & Leather Association gave the trade statistics and said Boston bankers understand this line o f trade, while New Yorkers do not. He referred to the tariff bill as detrimental to New England and added that this section deserves to be shown some reasonable and proper regard in the matter of a regional bank. Then he made his final statement about New England still being part of the United States.

Old-Time Cold Cure—Drink Tea

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, called it, "Hamburger Breast Tea," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a strainer, and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts resulted in bringing out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They don't injure the teeth like stirring liquids or calomel. Take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why save the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums, so do stirring liquids. Don't take calomel, but let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "bilious." Note how they "clear" clouded brains and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O. All druggists.

RAN FIANCEE'S FATHER OUT BY COAT COLLAR

Dr. Joseph T. Tynan, a well-known South Boston physician, was fined $10 in Dorchester Municipal Court yesterday for seizing his prospective father-in-law, Patrick Tynan, by the coat collar and seat of his trousers and running him from the reception room of the Tynan home, No. 74 Linden street, Dorchester, to the chamber and depositing him in a heap upon the bed. The act followed a heated discussion of Irish affairs and the local political situation on the Sunday before Christmas.

Dr. Tynan testified that he had called upon his fiancee, Miss Catherine Tynan, as was his custom and went into the parlor at the request of Miss Tynan and her mother. Mr. Tynan and a friend, Mr. Dempsey, were seated at a table.

By way of a salutation the physician said to Mr. Tynan, "What do you think of the political situation?"

"I don't see anything to it but Curley," was the alleged response of the head of the family.

Dr. Tynan testified to alleged clinches that followed and offered to illustrate on Lawyer Joseph F. Connell just what followed. He said that he did everything possible to quiet Mr. Tynan and finally deposited him on the bed.

"Do you think that was a nice way to treat your prospective father-in-law?" the doctor was asked.

"Sorry to say I do not," was the reply.

The court seemed willing to place the case on file but Dr. Tynan wanted an acquittal. He was fined $10 and appealed.

WOMEN SAVED IN PAWTUCKET HOTEL FIRE

PAWTUCKET, Jan. 9.—Twenty guests, half of them women, were rescued and thirty-five others fled for their lives at dawn today when flames swept through the Benedict House, the city's oldest hotel, from basement to the roof. A general alarm was sounded. The loss was $50,000.

After making three rescues, Fireman Joseph Tare was overcome by smoke and collapsed in a corridor.

Half a dozen of the guests escaped by means of the fire escapes. The rescue work of the rescuers inside the building brought all the guests to the street by the time the firemen had raised their ladders to the windows on the upper floors.

January Mark Down Sale

As long as this sale lasts you're going to be able to pick up some remarkably strong values—for we're doing our level best to get stocks down to an extremely low point for stock-taking.

We want nothing but new goods for the new spring season, and that means getting rid of winter merchandise NOW, at a loss.

Legal Stamps With Every Purchase

We are taking the loss good and strong. You can reap the benefit by saving big round dollars—and the same warranty of satisfaction. "Your money back if you want it." It's just the same at these reduced prices as if you paid what the goods are actually worth.

Pretty strong statement—but here are some of the proofs.

$10-12.50 Suits or O'Coats 7.75

$10 and $12.50 Overcoats 7.75

Even at $12.50 you would be paying about a third less than the same coats would cost you elsewhere.

At $7.75 you're getting them not far from cost price. Fancy blues, browns, or grays, in cheviots, kerseys, Scotches.

$10 and $12.50 Suits—At 7.75

You are getting these suits for about what they cost to manufacture.

But they're of more profit to us on your back, even at a loss, than to remain in our stock. The new three-button styles in blue and brown worsteds.

GEORGES CARPENTIER WILL GET A THOROUGH TEST IN BOUT WITH "GUNBOAT" SMITH

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

AMATEUR STANDING OF THE VICTORIA SEVEN QUESTIONED BY THE CANADIAN OFFICIALS

CARPENTIER IN BIG RING TEST WITH 'GUNBOAT'

By JACK CONWAY.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, the sensational twenty-year-old French heavyweight, will probably be the next opponent for "Gunboat" Smith, the Californian boxer with the big punch. If these two men are signed for a bout it will take place in Paris.

"Gunboat" has proved that he is the class of the ring over in this country. He has vanquished every man who has opposed him. The majority of his opponents have been sent to the canvas for the count.

Smith is recognized as the white heavyweight champion in this country. European fight "fans," however, declare that Carpentier is better performer than Smith. As few people are given prison sentences for expressing their opinions these days, I suppose we will be obliged to permit the little lovers of the ring world to have their say.

CARPENTIER is the heavyweight champion of Europe, but the writer believes he would not be a match for the rugged Smith, who is a fair boxer and who can land a dream blow with either hand. Carpentier is a good fighter, but he has not startled the sporting world when pitted against experienced American glove wielders.

Frank Klaus and Billy Papke, two Yankee middleweights, both scored knockout victories over the French lad. As this is a family newspaper, we cannot inform you what Smith would do to Klaus and Papke, even though they were as good foes as they were when they clashed with Carpentier.

IF Smith wins from Carpentier he will probably be signed to exchange blows with Jack Johnson. There are a number of promoters who are anxious to arrange for a meeting between Smith and Johnson. If these two men ever meet within the ropes, the gunner will not lack supporters who will be willing to wager every penny that he will conquer Johnson.

SOME slashing ring bouts have been promoted this year in the Lakeside A. C. of Vermont. This organization holds shows once a month and they are invariably attended by a quiet, orderly crowd. The bouts held this season have been sported affairs and the "fans" have gone home satisfied.

TERRY MARTIN and "Young" Jasper, who put up such a slashing battle before the Lakeside Club, may meet in a return contest in Manchester, N. H. Martin won the decision over Jasper, but not until after twelve exciting rounds of fighting, in which a crafty ring general tested all his skill and strategy against a strong, ambitious youngster. The veteran won, but Jasper believes he would be able to reverse the decision if another whirl were arranged.

JASPER is a big favorite in Manchester, N. H., and promoters in that city would like to sign him to meet Martin again. As for Martin, he is well known in Manchester, as he lived there for a number of years.

JACK DOHERTY was very fortunate to secure the consent of Joe Chick and Frank Loughrey to meet in a fifteen-round engagement in Marieville next Wednesday night. Chick recently fought a fifteen-round draw with Johnny "Kid" Alberts in Marieville and should do well against Loughrey, with whom he has already battled ten rounds to a draw.

Referee Eyton Says Boxing Isn't Brutal

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 9.—Virtually all of the so-called "knockouts" are on paper; "prize fighting or boxing is not a brutal sport," Charles Eyton, referee of the Jess Willard-"Bull" Young match, in which the latter met his death, testified in the trial of Willard and nine others on a charge of prize fighting in violation of the laws of California. Eyton testified that boxers did not always try to knock out their opponents and said Packey McFarland was an example of a man who seldom won by a knockout.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS By A.H.C. Mitchell

GEORGE TYLER, southpaw of the Braves, says he prefers to stick with Stallings, but if he is swapped to St. Louis he will jump to the Federal League.

EVERY ball player has an aversion to playing in St. Louis because the weather is so terrifically hot in Summer. It is bad enough to have to go there as a member of a winning team for eleven games a year, but to be there eighty-odd days in a playing season is something the average ball player ducks whenever possible.

IT is the general opinion among ball players that the reason the St. Louis clubs make such a poor showing in the American and National League races is because of the hot weather that prevails there most of the Summer.

Lou Criger, who played a season or two in St. Louis used to say: "Many's the night I have lain awake from sundown to sunrise because I couldn't sleep on account of the extreme heat. That sort of thing takes all the sleuth out of a ball player. I would rather play for $1,000 to Boston that for five times as much in St. Louis."

THIS Mr. James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal League, seems to be master of the art of publicity. He jumped from the coal business to be the leader of the "outlaw" organization. Doubtless he realized that his talents in the publicity line were being wasted in the coal business. Publicity in the coal business is not the right kind of publicity. It usually runs to references to coal barons and the oppressive advantage to the price of the commodity.

THAT didn't suit Mr. Gilmore. Besides he said that coal baron stuff was a joke and that there wasn't much money in coal. So, although a novice in the baseball business he took a plunge and succeeded in the incredibly short space of time in making the entire baseball world sit up and take notice.

OF course, Mr. Gilmore was greatly helped by the times. It is the off season for baseball reporters. In the Summer time, when the reporters are busy on the real baseball doings, Mr. Gilmore would have had no more chance in getting publicity than a snowball in the infernal regions.

But he played his cards at the psychological moment and in twenty-four hours the Federal League got about $300,000 worth of advertising through the singing of Joe Tinker.

THE leader of the Feds has worked secretly and when a man does that he has the other fellows guessing. Included in the "other fellows" are the reporters. Many conflicting statements are being made regarding the "outlaws," however. In fact, the promoters of the organization are giving out conflicting statements. An Indianapolis magnate says, for example, that Tommy Leach has been signed to manage the Pittsburgh club. Leach denies it. So does Gilmore and so does Barbour, president of the Pittsburgh club. But while several of the Federal League club owners have their signals mixed and their wires crossed Gilmore has thus far said but little and has made good on his statements.

THE Federal League is a long way from winning its fight, but so far its leader in the person of Mr. Gilmore has created a favorable impression on the baseball public.

Three Swimming Records Broken

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Three world's records, the 120-yard, 200 and 220-yard, were broken in the first swim for the Central Amateur Athletic Union championships. H. J. H. Hebner and Perry McGillivray were the record breakers.

Hebner won the 220-yard race in 2m. 21s. The record was held by C. M. Daniels of New York in 2:24 2-5. Hebner also lowered the 200-yard record, making the distance in 2:07 2-5, against C. Healy's former time of 2:11 1-5. Perry McGillivray won the 100-yard race in :56 seconds.

Cochran Has Ordered $350,000 Yacht

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—William Gardner, the yacht designer, has confirmed the report that Alexander S. Cochran has ordered a large schooner yacht in addition to the boat he is having built as a candidate for the defence of the America Cup. The new schooner will exceed in size any fore-and-aft pleasure craft ever built and will cost in the neighborhood of $350,000—or more than his cup yacht.

The schooner will be built from Gardner designs at the yard of George Lawley & Son, in Neponset, Mass. She will be plated with aluminum bronze as is used in a cup boat, and will have auxiliary crude oil motors aggregating 1,500 horsepower.

Three New Cities in New England League

Three new cities have been admitted to the New England League. The Brockton Club has been transferred to Lewiston, Me.; New Bedford moves to Fitchburg and the Fall River franchise goes back to Haverhill, where it was located two seasons ago. The complete new circuit is as follows: Worcester, Fitchburg, Lawrence, Lynn, Portland, Haverhill, Lewiston and Lowell. The season will open on April 29 and close September 13. Each club will play 121 games. The schedule has not yet been drawn up, but a committee has been appointed and will meet March 3 to settle on the dates.

Somerville in League Game with Arlington

Unusual interest is being shown in the interscholastic League hockey game to be played at the Arena this afternoon between the Arlington and Somerville High Schools. Somerville's surprisingly good work against Rindge and the fact that the Arlington aggregation is not up to the standard of former years has raised the question as to the outcome. Taking everything into consideration, the game promises to be very close.

IRISH-AMERICAN SEVEN WARNED, BUT WILL PLAY

HOW THE TEAMS LINE UP:

IRISH-AMERICAN A. A.	VICTORIA
Ford, l.w.	r.w., McMurtry
Turtlett, c.	c., Hale
Telford, r.	Chambers
Small, r.w.	l.w., Howatt
Sutton, c.p.	c.p., Bissell
Davenport, p.	p., Ehrs
Day, g.	g., Law

Despite the warning of the N. E. A. A. U., the Irish-American hockey team will play the Victorias of Montreal at the Arena tonight. In a message to the B. A. A., President Bilnco of the A. A. H. U. of Canada declared that the Victorias are semi-professionals, and that teams playing them are liable to lose their amateur standing. The B. A. A. at once notified Secretary Frank Facey of the N. E. A. A. U., who in turn notified the Irish-American, but in spite of all the latter club will go on with the game.

The B. A. A. was scheduled to play the Victorias at the Arena tomorrow night, but has cancelled the game. The Unicorn seven will play the Pilgrims instead.

The Victorias arrived here this morning and were expected to display proof of their amateur status.

The Canadians were defeated by both the Pilgrim A. A. and the B. A. A. last year, and they are very anxious to wipe out that double defeat.

The game tonight will be the first appearance of the Irish-American A. A. seven, but all the players are well known to the hockey enthusiasts of Boston. Freddie Hurlbert, the former Williams and Technology athlete, will play centre for the local seven.

LOVE DUEL LEADS TO BAN UPON TANGO

HAVERHILL, Jan. 9—The "love duel" between two nineteen-year-old girls, Louise Smith and Ethel Merrill, the other night, as a result of which Miss Smith is confined to her home with a lacerated scalp, has led to a ban on the tango in the Bradford district. It is contained during and the tango were indirectly responsible.

"If I had known it in such a state of affairs was possible," said Marshal Mack today, "that dance would be left engaged. I never was present at a public ball where there was a worse lot of conduct. You could up the ball of cages it would have had censure in attendance. Things have reached such a pass, however, now, that I think it best to close up the hall entirely, and I have notified the janitor to that effect."

Miss Smith today denied there was any jealously toward her on account of any particular young man. She said:

"I am a good dancer and wherever I go to a dance all the best young men want to dance with me and leave Miss Merrill sitting over. On that account she has some awful things to me.

"Monday night, when I was coming from the dance she jumped upon me, pulled my hair and knocked me down. I didn't fight back, but fainted."

Seeks Divorce to Wed Actor Hilliard

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Friends of Mrs. Olga Julia Everett Wilson, daughter of a multi-millionaire Newark, N. J., brewer, who is suing her husband for divorce, admitted today that she was engaged to Robert Hilliard, the actor, and will marry him in June if she secures her divorce.

Mr. Hilliard, who is playing in Detroit, was quoted in many capitals today as saying he would marry Mrs. Wilson at the end of the latter's theatrical season. He has been married twice before.

Pimples Often the Source of Serious Blood Trouble

In thousands of instances blood troubles have been the result of coming in contact with disease germs in public places. And the apparently insignificant pimple has been the cause of spreading with astonishing rapidity, often infecting the entire system in a few days.

It is fortunate, however, that there is a remedy to cope quickly and thoroughly with such a condition, in the [illegible] S. S. S.

This preparation stands alone as a blood purifier. It is somewhat revolutionary in its composition, since it has accomplished all that was ever claimed for mercury, iodides, arsenic and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable which serves the active purpose of stimulating each tiny cellular product. It contains one ingredient part of the tissues to the health and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. There are more cases of articular rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, paresis, neuritis, and similar diseases resulting from the use of mercury than most people are aware of. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book compiled by the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with special information, to all who write describing their symptoms.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, but be sure that you have what is claimed on the label claimed to be just as good.

The next reason why some will try to sell you something in place of S. S. S. is the extra profit.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I SEEN a thing when I was doing some shopping this week," said the Manicure Lady, "that reminded me of my childhood days back in the old village. There was a old fellow with chin whiskers on that came into the swell department store where I was shopping, and after he had bought a pair of gloves he asked the clerk if that was the very best she could do on the price. Of course, the girl behind the counter looked at him and laughed and said that she couldn't cut no prices; so the old fellow threw the gloves back and told her to keep them. He said he was going somewhere with his trade where people would appreciate him and the money he spent.

"I suppose that broke the girl's heart," said the Head Barber.

"She didn't care none, of course," said the Manicure Lady, "but it kind of set me to thinking that there is a lot of people in this world like that old guy with the fringe on his lower jaw. He was in there to spend a dollar and get about ten cents over a dollar in value. And even then he thought that the store people ought to look for him with outstretched arms and treat him like a prince.

"I remember when we lived in a small town, George. We had that kind of stuff handed to us on every side. The old gent used to keep a hotel when I was a mere child—one of them country hotels where there is accommodation for man and beast, and you could take your pick which kind of accommodations you wanted. I remember one time an old farmer walked up to father and said: 'Sir, I always stop here for my dinner every time I come to town, five or six times every year. And I always pay my 25 cents for dinner without no squeal. Don't you think you ought to throw in a good cigar with the dinner once in a while?' I remember how the old gent told him to get out of the place and go somewhere else for his two-bit dinners in the future.

"He must have been pretty cheap, he's a farmer," observed the Head Barber.

"The cheap folks ain't all in the country, George," said the Manicure Lady. "There is a lot of them in the city that would like to beat down the clerks in the big stores if they thought that they could get away with it, but they know there ain't a chance in the world, so they let their meanness crop out other ways. They think cheap thoughts even if they haven't got the nerve to express them. One girl friend of mine that wouldn't think of asking for a lower price on a shirt waist would ride down town morning after morning with me on the Elevated, and I noticed after I had dug three or four mornings in a row for the carfare that she would make an awful stall in her pocketbook for ten cents and sulling that 'Oh, let me pay!' stuff. Take it from me, George, after the third morning I let her look until she had dug up that hard, thin dime, and after that she didn't snuggle up to me no more. I suppose she was looking for another victim.

"That's the system they play in the big town, George. They pat you on the back until you blush as long as you can help them, but the minute you start looking out of the window and not responding to their hollers for help, they beat it for fresh fields and pastures new. How many friends have you got here in the city, George, that would stick to you if you were going through bankruptcy?"

"I guess the only friends I would have then would be my wife," said the Head Barber, "and the lawyer that was putting me through."

Do You Know That

Few crazes are more extraordinary than the mania of "souvenir hunting." It is calculated that in London cabs alone the annual depredations amount to $100,000, mostly made up of articles of small intrinsic value, such as plates and spoons. Snobbery is said to be responsible, as the returning tourist loves to display articles bearing the crest or coloring of hostelries. The worst of the souvenir ends are the travellers who carry small axes to chip off pieces of statuary and fragments of the masonry of cathedrals.

The marriage has taken place at Baltimore of Miss Sophie M. Koerth, who was pronounced incurable by over a score of physicians and was attacked on nine points of her mouth so, after the last and most dangerous of the operations, Miss Koerth had it for the first time that a cure had been effected. Miss Koerth was married in the dress which she made four years ago with her own hands for her bridal.

A Pennsylvania man who died recently was so stout that his house had to be demolished partially before it was possible to bury him. He weighed 500 pounds, and the coffin in so large that it could not be taken out by the door or through the windows, so that part of the house had to be torn down first. On account of his size he had been unable to do any work for the past five years.

The largest estate in the United Kingdom is that belonging to the Duke of Sutherland, which extends to 1,200 acres.

No. 9—She Finds Friends in an Unexpected Quarter

BY STELLA FLORES

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

AFTER stealing away quietly in the night, the little Gold Witch wanders hopelessly in the dark streets for hours. At last, exhausted, she sinks on a doorstep, and in a few seconds is fast asleep. Though unseen dangers menace, guardian spirits hover near.

IN the morning a guardian angel of more substantial form discovers the Gold Witch sleeping on her steps. It is good Mrs. MacCarty, whose heart is as big as her body. She brings the friendless girl in her house and tells her she must stay.

Extracts from the Wills of Famous Men

By FRANK G. TURNER

Author of "Law of Evidence," "Law of Writing Wills," etc.

SHAKESPEARE, the greatest of dramatic poets, born in 1564, died in 1616, leaving a will in which he gave his second best bed, with the furniture, to his wife. To several of his friends he left money to buy rings for themselves.

George Washington, first President of the United States, born in 1732, died in 1799, wrote his will with his own hand and subscribed every page with his name. In addition to other property left to his wife he gave "my household and kitchen furniture of every sort and kind, with the liquors and groceries which may be on hand."

Napoleon, born in 1769, dying in 1821, provided by his will: "It is my wish that my ashes may repose on the banks of the Seine, in the midst of the French people, whom I loved so well." He recommended his son never to forget that he was born a French prince. His will was also written with his own hand.

Benjamin Franklin, born in 1706, and who died in 1790, was the youngest son and fifteenth child in a family of seventeen. In his will he provided: "Out of my salary that may remain due to me as president of the State, I do give the sum of two thousand pounds to my executors, to be by them, the survivors or survivor of them, paid over to such person or persons as the Legislature of this State by an Act of Assembly shall appoint to receive the same in trust, to be employed for making the River Schuylkill navigable."

Andrew Jackson, born in 1767, died in 1845, leaving a will in which he provided: "The gold box presented to me by the Corporation of the City of New York, the large silver vase presented to me by the ladies of Charleston, South Carolina, my native State, with the large picture representing the unfurling of the American banner by the citizens of South Carolina when it was refused to be accepted by the United States Senate, I leave in trust for my son, A. Jackson, Jr., with directions that should our happy country not be blessed with peace, an event not always to be expected, he will at the close of the war or end of the conflict present each of said articles of inestimable value to that patriot residing in the city or State from which they were presented who shall be adjudged by his countrymen or the ladies to have been the most valiant in defence of his country and our country's rights."

Thomas Jefferson, the third President, was born in 1743 and died in 1826, leaving a will dated March 16, 1826, and a codicil dated the following day. He gave a gold watch to each of his grandchildren who should not already have received one from him, to be purchased for them when the boys became twenty-one years old and the girls sixteen years old. He directed that a log house he built on his estate for three of his slaves whom he emancipated.

Tabloid Fables

WHAT is meant, Mother, by "as beautiful as a dream?"

It is an expression, My Child, which does not idly, and wisely, without thinking, accept as a compliment. To dream, something big and black, with cruel teeth and eyes and claws, is chasing the dreamer. If a woman looked like that, she would be locked up.

Is there such a thing, Mother, as popularity among the women of the same household?

Yes, Child. They always agree on this: That Father's overcoat will do for another Winter.

When a woman begins to talk of at last having found a Kindred Soul on the other sex, what does it mean, Mother Dear?

It means, my Child, that trouble is in sight for her, and that she likes the looks of it.

Why, Mother Mine, do men just as orally drift into compliments when talking to women?

They don't, Little One; it is the interpretation that sinless flirts make complimentary. If a man says a woman has an unusual face, she thinks he means she is beautiful. If he says her hair is a crowning glory to her, she takes that to mean that men are interesting.

—FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE GARDEN

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

MAKE for yourself a garden,
Plant every seed with care,
Though storms may wail and howl without
You'll find contentment there.
Tangles of sweet wild roses,
Pansies with faces rare—
Flower and leaf and bud so sweet,
Scenting the Summer air.

Make for yourself a garden,
Deep in your inmost soul;
Winter may rage and seasons fail,
Still is your garden whole.
Make every thought a flower,
Hope like the lilies fair—
You'll find in your heart's sweet garden
Perfume for all the air.

DayseyMaymeand Her Folks

IT is a very modest measure for every man reasonably to expect an invitation to dine with his wife's kin. Sometimes strange happens at such a most harrowing occasion to threaten the with annoyance from the sun to the commencing that arise afterward.

"In time of Peace, prepare for War," is as good advice to families as for nations.

The women folks tried whose humility are contained in cockentah and ashes that are but one station in royal raiment for her life. And Mrs. Lysander John Applejon, while wearing very little of the cockentah and ashes, for it is seldom these girls have you know, strutted off her kin in the habiliments of royalty, as Lysander John would tell you if ever he were allowed to speak.

The exceptant an invitation to her brother, which for New Years dinner, it is said to mean the new year with an abundance in the Family Tin. Lysander John and Mrs. Lysander, because the new year promising without a condition, and seeing much leisure, the new year promising without a condition, and seeing much leisure, because the new year promising without a condition, and seeing much leisure, because the new year promising without a condition, and seeing much leisure, because

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks ruled stronger this afternoon after opening at a lower range and improving during the morning. After making in New York gains included Southern Pacific ¼, Missouri Pacific 1½, Union Pacific ¼, Delaware & Hudson ¼, Reading ¼, New Haven ¼, American Can ¼, Steel ¼ and Amalgamated ¼. Canadian Pacific was off ⅝.

Boston & Maine was the strongest stock in the local market, being 2¼ higher. Among declines were American Telephone ¾, Calumet & Arizona ¼, Granby ¼ and Tamarack ⅛.

EARLY NEW YORK TREND.

The early price trend in New York was uncertain and after the opening at which most leaders had lower there was a period of hesitancy during which stocks fluctuated within a narrow range. Canadian Pacific was lacked support to a degree and was about the weakest of prominent issues in New York at the opening this side. Another feature above parity for a while in London and then receded in sympathy with the general lower at the close there. Although foreign business was small this was somewhat offset by buying in New York, where operations were almost entirely professional.

The legal suits to prevent Union Pacific from disposing of Baltimore & Ohio stocks and restricting cash bonus to conversion stockholders as planned was not unexpected, but it was something of a check upon an upward movement in prices at the beginning of trading. Union Pacific was under pressure there was less demand for Reading and a number of other important issues. There has been no general change in sentiment, but for immediate transactions there was more disposition to be bearish than bullish.

COPPERS WERE STEADY.

Considering the nature of the report as to surplus refinery stocks at the beginning of this year rendered by the Producers' Association, copper shares held very steady. Amalgamated did not figure largely in the volume of transactions, but soon recovered its initial decline and had made a good gain before noon.

The decline in Canadian Pacific was said to be a renewal of liquidation on both sides of the Atlantic. The rumor that Pennsylvania is going to dispose of Norfolk & Western holdings was revived and weakened the latter issue. There was not much business in New Haven, and both speculators and investors appear to be awaiting something definite about the settlement of that road's negotiations with the Department of Justice.

Call money was offered at 3½ per cent.; but the low quotation did not stimulate business, which was on a smaller scale as regards leaders and aggregate during the morning.

MARKET TONE IMPROVED.

The tone of the market improved during the first hour and was firmer most of the time during the balance of the forenoon, issues to make gains including Southern Pacific, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Anaconda, Chino and American Cotton Oil, the latter being among the strongest and more active than usual. The improvement in Amalgamated and several others was largely due to covering of shorts.

There was a renewal of pressure against American Sugar during the morning. It is understood that negotiations between this corporation and the Department of Justice are proceeding less smoothly. That it will be has been picked by bears as a vulnerable issue.

Among stocks to make substantial gains were American Tobacco and American Snuff.

BIG CASH GAIN BY BANKS.

There was no material change in conditions for time funds. Known movements of money for the week ended yesterday indicate that New York banks made gains on interior and subtreasury operations possibly as much as $26,000,000. Gains from the interior are estimated at more than $20,000,000 and from the subtreasury more than $5,000,000.

B. AND M. ADVANCES.

A feature of trading in the local market was the early advance in Boston & Maine, it selling above 19 on the strength of an announcement that the road will re-organize Maine Central stock for bonds and be in a position to meet notes due next month.

Copper issues were dull. They did not weaken on the announcement of the increase in refinery supply. Transactions, however, declined 1½ on one exhaustive theory that copper output was resumed to a few issues. The metal is in a seemingly good shape. Consumers are evidently awaiting a reduction in the price of electrolytic. A London cablegram to the News Bureau read: "Dealers generally are quoting £66—14s., early. American smelting agents are £66—14s. cents."

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper statistics opened week and at the morning call spot was off 7/6 and futures 12/6 d. Spot was up 2/6 and future 1/3 d. Spot sold in London 3,000 tons, making sales for 3 days 6,000 tons; sales were 400 tons of spot and 1,000 of futures.

The Postal and American Telephone and are not permitted to distribute to Western Union shareholders among stock of the latter. It is believed that the Postal stock is in order to comply with the law of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The Stock Exchange will be closed for all or general business and that on other days the tariff for short for time and cash transactions.

A financial correspondent of Henry Clews & Co. says: "The above statement of distribution of Baltimore & Ohio stock is made difficult by the fact that the Union Pacific advance of late and few days above that some people were interested."

Cotton closed from 1912 growth point in the first of the year totalled 12,522,071 bales, counting round 68 bale bales against 12,907,405 in 1912 and 14,317,662 in 1911. Census Bureau figures. December ginning 1,227,640 bales and in March 1,227,812.

Gold coin in the amount of $200,000 was shipped from New York to Hamburg, Germany, this week, proving from the trend on the movement back from Canada to Europe. Last week's imports last received $400,000.

HUNDREDS ARE IMPERILLED BY MILL EXPLOSION

LOWELL, Jan. 9.—The blaster headed on the engines in the Prescott Mill late this evening and the hundred men employed in the mill were thrown into panic by the sound of blinding, stifling steam which instantly filled the room.

It was stated that the automatic safety valve on the machines ceased to work. Flying metal and wood struck many of the operatives, and although there were no fatal injuries a number of persons took the hysterical or painfully injured employes to their homes.

The Prescott Mill is a branch of the Massachusetts Mills and makes cotton cloth. About 1,000 operatives were at work in the building when the explosion took place, and the disturbance, which forced the whole building, resulted in a rush for the open air. Almost the entire force is a great alarm, ran from the mill and waited till the steam had cleared away before re-entering.

Efforts to Settle Copper Strike Fail

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 9.—A settlement of the copper strike in the Calumet region, appeared to be far off today. Governor Ferris, after failing to bring the warring factions together, will leave the copper country, while Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, is prepared to stay and direct the strike "to the bitter end."

Hope of bringing about a settlement of the labor difficulties vanished when the mine operators refused point blank to recognize the Western Federation of Miners.

Conditions—Boston American Picture Answer Contest

The Boston American new 1914 Picture Answer Contest is a correspondence contest, and all members of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any one hundred and fifty-five cash prizes will be given. Employes of the Boston American in the mission, composition of the Boston American Picture Answer Contest are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

The publication of the Boston American will begin tomorrow, to be printed one each day, consecutively, in the daily and Sunday issues of the Boston American for 75 days.

Participation in any other contest which has been published in the Boston American, or which may be in the Boston American, will not bar one from entering this contest.

Every contestant or any of all members of a family will be allowed to send one or more lists of the words of answers, but each list must contain only ONE answer to each picture.

Each list will be considered separately, but no contestant will win more than one prize, and no more than one prize will be awarded in any one family.

Each and every answer must be in plain, writing, and printed on the coupon furnished in the Boston American, or on a sheet of paper of the same size, accompanied either by the coupon printed in the Boston American, or a sheet of paper of the same size, and send them to the Boston American, Contest Editor, Box 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Do NOT send your solution in "form" form, as we can not write answers under one answer on a piece of paper.

In case there is a tie between any of the prize winners, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct answers, according to mail time of receipt.

In case of a tie, awards will be made by the basis of contests, judgment and experience, and no tie will be left to be decided in that way, the tied contestants will receive similar prizes.

Under no circumstances should contestants send in their answers before the first one to appear in the series of pictures, as answers sent in any earlier than a week before the last picture is printed will not be considered.

Each answer must be addressed to the Boston American Contest Headquarters, at No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass., and must reach there not later than midnight of the same week. It is contemplated to give contestants ten days to send in answers after the close of the contest, so that they can be sent in all together, at one time.

The Boston American will not be responsible for the receipt of any answers which are not received mail and addressed to Picture Answer Contest Editor, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

As all answers will contain writing or printed matter, the Boston American deems it necessary that no one be allowed to send in mail letter rate, as mail of this character can be forwarded by the American mailer. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse any sets of answers on which postage or postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be one prize of $1,000 cash, and a list of several hundred cash prizes will be printed in the Sunday American each week after the close of the contest. The 1st, second and third prizes will contain, among others, the CORRECT ANSWERS to the pictures to be used during the week beginning with each Sunday publication.

Contestants must comply with all conditions and rules. Any irregularities in the Picture Answer Contest will be disqualified. Any other questions should address their inquiries to the Picture Contest Editor, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass. All questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American. Only one person personally connected with should receive without postage for such a reply, or may send those Make Checks to all to persons.

The Boston American reserves the right to make and change rules, in addition to those conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the contest, and the decision of the Boston American Contest Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of a contestant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

The Contest Plan

Each day for 75 days, commencing Sunday, Jan. 4th, the Boston American will print a picture representing the name or title of a song, book, poem, explorer, play, proverb, river or lake, or other appropriate subject.

$4,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the 155 competitors who send in the largest number of correct answers.

There will be no catalogue or book of titles to buy. The American will furnish this information absolutely free to contestants by publishing each week in the Sunday American an official list of names or titles, among which will be found the CORRECT answers to the pictures to be used during the week commencing with each such Sunday publication.

Glance down the prize list and get busy right now—today, for the big $1,000 cash prize.

BOSTON VOTERS=CONSIDER THESE FACTS

The opponent of Mr. Kenny, candidate for Mayor, represents a type of politician whom the Democratic voters of New York have just repudiated when they elected John Mitchel by more than one hundred thousand majority and slaughtered the Tammany ticket. Readers, do you doubt this statement? Consider these FACTS:

FIRST—This gentleman's Ward 17 Club he has called the Tammany Club. Do men name their creatures or their children after those they do not admire? Do you want better evidence of the political ideal of the opponent of Mr. Kenny than the name Tammany—which he has given his political club?

SECOND—Tammany serves the corporations in New York. So does the Ward 17 Tammany. BOTH the Tammany representatives in the last Legislature betrayed their party platform and voted to give the New Haven railroad the control of the street railways in more than half the State.

THIRD—The Ward 17 Tammany candidate for Mayor conducts a gangster campaign that would even put the New York Tiger to shame. He travels about the city with a horde of enthusiasm manufacturers, while thugs and gangsters everywhere attempt to break up the Kenny rallies in order that Mr. Kenny may not be able to present his arguments to the voters.

FOURTH—This Ward 17 Tammany candidate exhibits in his personal methods of campaign the New York Tammany standards. While occupying his present position in Congress, he went upon the public platform in Ward 9 and called people of that district who were at the meeting "door mat thieves, second story workers and milk can robbers." This was no sudden outburst of anger which he regretted, FOR HE DID THE SAME THING in South Boston.

DO WE WANT THE NATION TO KNOW THAT WE CANNOT GET A BETTER TYPE OF MAN FOR OUR CHIEF MAGISTRATE than the man who names his club the Tammany Club, who makes his Tammany legislators vote in the interest of the New Haven railroad for the most vicious laws ever passed; who carries a band of heelers to manufacture enthusiasm from rally to rally, who from a public platform calls people foul names which are published in the newspapers and spread broadcast to the people of the State and country, GIVING A MALODOROUS IMPRESSION OF THE KIND OF POLITICAL LEADERS THE DEMOCRATS OF BOSTON HONOR?

The Harm That Is Done by Our Friends

It Is Quite Easy to Forgive Our Enemies, for They Do Us Comparatively Little Harm

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company

Thought lives through the ages, flies about over the earth, and goes on visiting fresh minds, after the mind that gave it birth has gone back to dust and nothingness.

An Italian wrote words to this effect:

"Man is commanded to forgive his enemies. Nowhere is imposed on him the far more difficult task of forgiving his friends."

Francis Bacon, the philosopher, read in England the words of the Italian and quoted them.

Vincent W. Byars, a very able thinking man of St. Louis, read Bacon's quotation out there, and now he says to this writer:

"Why don't you make an editorial on that old Italian saying quoted by Bacon?"

Italy—England—St. Louis—Boston—thus the idea has hopped about, until today you get it in this column. A million of you read it, or at least glance at it; and so, if the idea has any value, it will go hopping on all over the earth's surface long after the steel press that prints this paper shall have crumbled away.

How little your ENEMIES can hurt you! How little harm they do, even when they try! You are warned against them and on your guard. The world knows they are your enemies, and discredits what they say.

It is quite easy to forgive our enemies, for they do us comparatively little harm.

But to forgive our friends would be hard indeed if we could realize how much harm they do us.

AMBITION KILLED BY FRIENDS.

A young man starts out to succeed in life.

His enemy may lie about him, may call him worthless. He may think he is hurting him. If there is anything in the young man, the enemy's lies and discouraging words only spur him on to greater effort. They do him good.

It is the friend that ruins the young man by false, injudicious, unearned praise.

As artist, poet, writer, clerk, or in any other effort, the young man begins his work.

It is his friends who tell him that he is a splendid success, when he needs to be told that, at best, he has some slight chance of success, and that everything depends on desperate effort.

Look at the young, conceited fool who, instead of struggling on, rails at the world, feels that he is not appreciated. He is a failure—a sad, foolish failure. He has been made a failure, not by the attacks of his enemies, but by the more dangerous praise of his friends.

The lonely and friendless often succeed amazingly. "Multum incola fuit anima mea" ("My spirit hath been much alone") said the great Bacon. His mind fed on loneliness, on failure, and even on disgrace.

How much success is due to freedom from that harm which friendship does?

Stars and Stripes

Most Americans would let Norway keep Frederick Pinney Earle and welcome.

The New Haven continues its crusade for popularity. It has reduced wages.

A rich man may not have gilt-edged chances of getting to Heaven, but at least he can buy a little coal in January.

It is just possible that Mr. J. P. Morgan will not have to cut down his cigars because of the loss of fees he got for attending forty directors' meetings.

More diamonds imported in 1913 than in any previous year. Isn't spite the high cost of living we must have our necessities.

The New Haven road is going to meet its embarrassments by cutting down its train schedule. Something as if a restaurant on the verge of bankruptcy should meet the emergency by refusing to serve half its customers.

With a woman Commissioner of Correction in New York and another woman enforcing martial law and imprisoning all the town officials in Copperfield, Ore., it would seem that the fair sex of the United States is doing well without militant methods.

A Socialist magazine is barred from the mails this month because there's a girl on the cover and no cover on the girl. Socialism is becoming so commonplace nowadays that its preachers must adopt desperate steps to arrest attention.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XIX.—(Continued)

"I mistrust me it ain't a girl you'll be lunchin' with," she said in a low voice, although there was nobody near to hear her soliloquy. "It's a hundred pities when a workin' girl's as pretty as you and so slim too. It's your sister I'd trust—not you—poor girl!"

Her exclamation of compassion was intended rather for Julia than for Julia's sister.

Caryl did not hear. Still, it was with flushed cheeks that she alighted at the corner below the studio-building and hastened to meet Somerdyke.

He was awaiting her in the vestibule, as she knew he would be. His back was toward the door by which she entered and she was by his elbow and had spoken his name before he saw her. Then he started in surprise.

"Hallo!" he exclaimed. "I have been watching the elevator for the past ten minutes, expecting you to come down from Delaine's apartment. Where have you been?"

Then, as his eyes took in her change of costume and rather conspicuous dress, she fancied that a gleam of mingled amusement and eyeglass lighted his eyes for a moment—but, before she could be certain, it was gone.

"Where shall we lunch?" asked Somerdyke, after he and Caryl had shaken hands. "I always like the lady to decide on the restaurant."

"How should I know where to go?" she asked naively, lifting her deep blue eyes to his dark ones and smiling bewitchingly. "You forget that I am a stranger in Boston!"

"Then you don't know Boston's fashionable restaurants at all?" queried Somerdyke, as they strolled slowly along the street.

"No," she admitted, shaking her head. "You see my sister and I only came here last Spring, and I have been working so hard learning my profession that I have had no time to think of pleasure of any kind. Now that I am a full-fledged stenographer I shall have more leisure."

"I'll remember," said Somerdyke, and Caryl appreciated that she had as good as told him that she was now in a position to receive invitations. But he did not appear to notice her break, for he suggested, without any further comment, a famous restaurant.

"All right," assented the girl demurely. She tried not to let her voice quiver with delight. She, Caryl Marvin, a poor stenographer, living in a cheap lodging, was going to that famous place. How wonderful it was and how she wished this experience could last longer than an hour or two! The thought suggested an idea to her.

"Good!" exclaimed Somerdyke. "Let's walk, and that will give us a chance to attend to an errand on the way over."

What the "errand" was was proved by his stopping in a few minutes at a florist's and buying a great sheaf of roses which he bade Caryl fasten to her belt. The smiling salesman handed her a long pin for the purpose, and she could hardly suppress a gasp of surprise when she heard him mention in a low voice to Somerdyke the price of the pink beauties that the purchaser seemed to value so lightly.

"Thank you ever and ever so much!" she said as they reached the street again. "These roses are wonderful, and I do love flowers!"

"You should wear them always, child, and always of that hue of pink. They just match your cheeks. No, they don't—not now!" he teased as her color deepened. "The American beauty makes the other roses pale by contrast."

While Somerdyke and the waiter were in consultation, she leaned back in her chair and looked about her. How cool and how lovely it was in here! Ah, this kind of thing was life—the life for which she was intended! She glanced at the other women in the restaurant and was surprised to see how unostentatiously some of them were dressed. A man and woman passed, and Caryl's eyes followed the woman's perfect figure wonderingly. How swell she looked, and yet how simple her clothes were!

"What are you thinking about?" asked Somerdyke, and she started from her musings at the sound of his voice. "I have been watching you for fully three minutes, and you have not looked in my direction once. What were you thinking of?"

"I was thinking," she declared bluntly, "of how I love all the fine things that rich people can enjoy—and especially how much I do love pretty clothes, and I was wishing I could have all of them that I would like to have!"

There came into his eyes a look she did not understand—a mingling cynicism and triumph.

Questions Answered

H. F. C.—You are mistaken in thinking that geometry had its origin among the Greeks. The science was probably born in old Egypt, and was intimately connected with the art of surveying. In Egypt, owing to the annual overflow of the Nile, it was absolutely necessary to fix upon some way of keeping track of the boundary lines between lands, and out of that necessity arose the art of land surveying. Geometry means land surveying, and it is pretty certain that the science found its chief impetus, if not its origin, in the art by which the Egyptians determined the division lines between their properties and provinces. The Greeks merely improved what the Egyptians had begun.

Girls, Be Natural! It's Your Best Asset

By DOROTHY DIX

"I WONDER," said a man the other day, "if there are any more simple, natural, girly-girls, who are the kind of girls the Lord made 'em, and don't pretend to be anything else, left in the world?

"If there are, I never meet them. Every girl that I run across is throwing a bluff at being something or somebody entirely different from what she is, and she isn't getting away with the job.

"She's ridiculous, as all poseurs are, and she's unattractive to men, because we men are simple creatures with simple ideas and simple tastes, and an unfortunate partiality for genuine, instead of spurious, articles.

"It's a pity that somebody doesn't rise up and tell girls that the two qualities that men admire most in woman are naturalness and sincerity. That's where the milkmaid and the country lassie have always won out.

"It's artlessness, not artfulness, that catches a man's fancy, and honestly I could weep for sympathy over the mistakes I see dear little girls making, who would be charming if they would only be themselves, and who are so silly and tiresome when they are affecting to be something that they are not, but which they falsely suppose that men admire.

"Take, for instance, vivacity. When vivacity is an attribute that a girl is born with, when she has quicksilver in her veins and a devil in her eyes and a bright outlook on life and a laugh that is like a peal of silver bells, she makes a gay and delightful companion. But it's because her merriment is spontaneous and unforced.

"Here comes along a girl of an entirely different type, a girl who is sober as a judge, and who couldn't see a joke even after it was diagrammed for her, but she's heard vivacity praised in another girl, and so she giggles and smirks and smiles until it makes your face ache to look at her perpetual grin, and she's so soggy and tiresome that she makes a man want to run off and hide where he can get out of earshot of her voice and her cackle.

"Then there's the girl who pretends to be a sport and who smokes cigarettes, although she loathes the taste of them, and they make her sick, and who boasts of her losses at cards, and who listens to off-color stories, whose nastiness she doesn't half understand. Can anybody explain why a really respectable young girl should wish to be thought to have the tastes and habits of the kind of woman we do not even mention in her presence?

"Yet they do. I know dozens of perfectly innocent young women who pretend to be tough, and who speak casually of having had too much champagne, when the only thing they ever had too much of was an extra cup of tea. They disgust the very men that they could attract if they would only be their natural, sweet, simple selves.

"And there's the girl who poses as being literary or artistic or musical, and who feels called upon to wear slinkesy clothes and never comb her hair and to go about with a rapt look in her eyes.

In reality her tastes are for Marie Corelli and chromos and ragtime, but she talks in a soulful way about Ibsen and Sudermann and technique and coloratura until she gives you the fantods, and a man would go seven miles to avoid meeting her.

"If she'd go along and talk about the common, every-day subjects she understands, men would like her and she'd have plenty of beaux, but the average man doesn't care a hang about what Browning thought he thought, or highbrowed conversation, and he's going to let the girl severely alone who hands out that line of talk to him.

"I've known more than one girl miss a good husband by always lugging around a copy of Maeterlinck with her.

"And most fatal of all is the folly of the girl who pretends to be better off than she is. I know plenty of poor girls who dress as if they were millionaires. Every cent the family can rake up is put on their backs, and they and their mothers slave themselves to death turning and twisting their clothes so as to give the impression that they have ten times what they have.

"They think this attracts men, but it scares them off. When a man sees the daughter of a poor man diked out like Solomon in all his glory, he says, 'Not for mah; she's selfish and extravagant and willing to work her poor old dad to death to get fine clothes. I don't want that sort of a wife.' And he passes her up.

"Why do girls act so silly? Why haven't they sense enough to know that imitation wares are always cheap and vulgar, and that there is nothing else so attractive as just simplicity?

"If they'd only be themselves instead of trying to be somebody else there'd be no more old maids."

Our Victories Are in Our Daily Work

By EDWIN MARKHAM

WILLIAM BAXTER OWEN'S book, "The Humanities in the Education of the Future," discusses the problem of efficiency with the emphasis upon a somewhat unusual aspect of the case—that of the aspirant:

"In doing the work of the world we see that men must go up or in the long run they must go out. Take the simplest illustration, the men that make the fires in locomotives on our railways; out of every hundred seventeen step forward to the throttle of the locomotive; six of this seventeen are advanced to locomotives on what are called 'passenger runs.' There is this sifting of men on the basis of their capacity to take responsibility. What then becomes of the eighty-five? Well, there is room for them to rise in firing, and so long as they increase in efficiency on their own level they are safe; but if they do not so increase there is other work for them—in the switching crew, or the round house, or on the roadbed, and they must go out.

"This is true of every level of labor. It is a law, inexorable; rather a grim law, it would appear at first glimpse, but really benevolent and cheerful; for it is the basis of the noblest optimism that we can entertain, and for this reason: It is easier to go up than to go down. Note the rise of a man in his business or his profession, and you will see that every step of ascent brings him to his own, to that in which he is at home.

"This is the hope of humanity, that men can go up and be at home.

"It is the very nature of spirit to be qualified by inspiration for those sudden betterments of condition. Any upward movement is in response to the natural aspiration of the soul, and universally we go upward with joy, downward with regret and chagrin.

"This point may well be earnestly pressed, for it is the secret of efficiency—the animation of young life with a reasonable incitement to improve. None are more open to such wholesome ambitions than the young, and it should be a ruling factor in the aim of those who teach to set for those they teach high standards in the best things.
